

COHOCTON'S BRIGHT FUTURE

A few weeks from now, construction will begin on our long-awaited wind farms. What a tremendous job our State, County and Town governments have done so far to make sure that everything is done right and that all things are considered. The result will be beautiful wind farms that all the people of Cohocton will be proud of.

With the great job that our government has been doing, it is disappointing to see that there are still a few people that continue to spread rumors and lies about local officials and about wind farms. It was no surprise to see in the Valley News recently letters that repeated stories that have long been proven false or were just totally false stories about things that the writers either had no real understanding about or they were blatantly lying about. It was no surprise, but it was disappointing.

For months the handful of people that oppose the wind farms have been making up stories and spreading rumors. As each and every one has been proven false, they just ignore it and move on to the next one (and many times go back to old ones to give it a second or third try) without ever living up to the fact that they were proven wrong. After all of that, they have the nerve to ask us to trust them over people that have always been straight forward and honest with us.

In a few weeks we will be moving forward to a better and brighter future for Cohocton. Hopefully, those that have tried so hard to cause dissention in our community through threats, rumors and lies will see the light and join with the rest of Cohocton in celebrating that brighter future.

YES! WIND POWER COHOCTON

THE VALLEY NEWS, June 19, 2007